

“How will your company grow?”

Has your company developed the necessary processes and infrastructure geared to your unique sales or business development environment?

Business growth in most markets is the result of a multi-faceted effort:

- Organic Growth - Growth or decline of your existing business
- Sales Development - Proliferation or extension of existing products
- Business Development - Development of new markets and opportunities

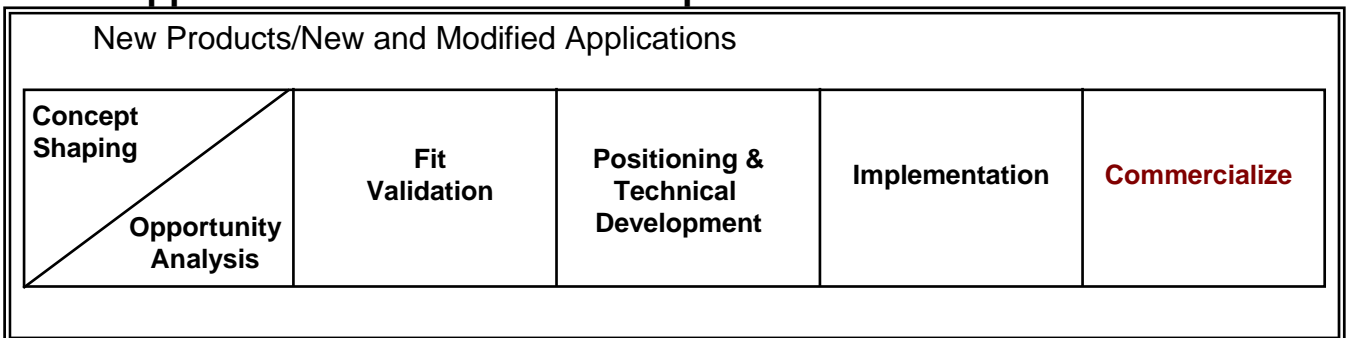

Have you developed a product or service offering and need business development support?

Have you generated a technical success and commercial failure?

We can help!

There are specific principles and practices available from MBI to help clients understand more about the commercial opportunities their businesses face. We can help assigning the right combination of technical and commercial resources to achieve business development success.

New Application and Product Development Process

- Coordinating the technical and commercial aspects of a new business opportunity is often one of the most critical success factors.
- Launch new products, develop new territories and expose your products to new and alternate sales channels – SPEED, VOLUME & VALUE!
